

DBS: Broly – 20 Reddit Reviews (r/dbz)

1. StarPlatinum55

Very good. It's the best DB film imo.

2. LeratoNull

Still inferior to Battle of Gods, still very good tho.

Both movies have mediocre stories, both have entertaining characters. DBS: Broly has Minus, but it's so disconnected from everything and out of nowhere that you can ignore it like the low-quality Toriyama fever dream it is. The animation quality alone decides the day, BoG's best art style is nasty compared to DBS: Broly's worst.

4. Kunxion

Extremely good. One of the best Dragonball movies imo.

I enjoyed it. Fun watch and the fight scenes are fantastic. Without spoilers, I watched Vegeta's and the last fight scene way too many times.

I think it's easily the best movie. I ranked most of the movies in order of their quality. For example of how I rated them the way I did: while The Tree of Might is really well-received on this subreddit, I think it's actually only so-so because the first half of the movie is completely unrelated to the plot (putting out the forest fire) and the final fight with Turles is actually not that good. This is my list in order of quality: Good: Broly (2018), Battle of Gods, Wrath of the Dragon, Dead Zone, The World's Strongest, Broly -- The Legendary Super Saiyan, Fusion Reborn, Resurrection 'F' So-so: The Return of Cooler, Cooler's Revenge, The Tree of Might, Bojack Unbound, Broly -- Second Coming, Super Android 13! Bad: Bio-Broly, Lord Slug

It's the best DB Movie by a mile, and honestly just peak Dragon Ball in general. The script has Toriyama written all over it, and the animation is mind blowing.

Lore: 9/10 Story: 7/10 Animation: 10/10 Fights: 10/10 Music: 6/10 (others like the style, I didn't go for it) Pacing: 3/10 (the main reason it needs to be adapted in the anime) TL;DR - It's good, watch it. Then start reading the manga at Chapter 42 for the best arc in Super to date.

Pacing: 3/10 I agree with that. The movie felt like it could have been at least 2x longer (especially the first third) and they had to cut Toriyama's script down a lot apparently. The director stated that Gogeta and Broly were originally going to fight on the Sun at one point. If they expanded the Saiyan/Bardock segment (with Bardock's last stand) and dedicate an episode to Gogeta vs Broly, then it would be amazing.

If they do adapt it I hope they don't drag it on as long as BoG. I honestly can't rewatch those episodes of Super they're so drawn out. I'd love to see how Freeza held up so long against Broly. Maybe more Broly/Paragus backstory and more Planet Vegeta drama. The movie did so many things right but the pacing was definitely a weak point.

I really enjoyed it. I actually showed it to my girlfriend to try and get her to get over the whole "anime is gay" trap that a lot of people fall victim to... It was a success.

12. SSJRemuko

Its easily (imo) one of, if not the best DB related movie, ever.

13. BlueFootedTpeack

top tier, nice animation, very fast and expressive, plenty of detailed looks, cool music, front loads the plot pretty heavily, best db film

14. kakkarot_73

It's great. Oh and prepare yourself for the chants.

15. lightedge

Overall really good lore, really good animation too. There is some bad character CGI though, such as the combined Goku and Vegeta beam attack that looks noticeably worse than the real 2d art.

16. Megadoomer2

I'd say that it's one of my favourite DBZ movies - it's either DBS Broly or Battle of Gods.

17. ArtisanofWar7

The pacing is the only true issue, the music chants are personal preference. Otherwise, it's probably the best if not one of the best dragonball movies there is

18. ItsLucs

It's a good film, good animation, good music... But it's empty, 30 min of story, 1h15 of fighting, and some scenes would have been more developed i think :) but it's still one of my favorite :)

You know where Brolys dad said "Attaaaaack!" to broly? They did the same scene in this new one and i laughed and exited. I couldnt take it anymore.

Looked a little disney in the graphics sometimes but other than that it was great.
